⦿ Break Time for Nursing Mother Law, US Department of Labor

US Patient Protection & Affordable Care Act (2010) amended the Fair Labor Standards Act to require employers to provide a nursing mother a place and reasonable break time to express breast milk after the birth of her child. The following is required: Reasonable time to express breast milk each time it is needed during the day, up to the baby's first birthday, and a place, other than a bathroom, that is private to express breast milk. An employer that employs fewer than 50 employees and proves an undue hardship may be exempt. The employer must apply for exemption through the Department of Labor. Nothing in this law shall preempt a State law that provides greater protections.

If you believe your employer is not complying with this law, you have a right to contact the Federal Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division (WHD). Upon calling your local WHD office, an intake person will ask for the complaint to be described and will verify your place of employment. The clerk will inquire if the employer is a "qualifying place of employment" and if they fall under the Wage and Hour Department laws. If you do not know the answer, you may still file a complaint. The complaint will then be marked valid & a valid complaint will be investigated. For more information or to file a complaint contact the Federal Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division: 1-866-487-9243
